

5 Reasons to Shop Secondhand

1. Shopping on a budget

Grab a bargain and find brand names at ridiculously low prices. Many designer items are passed on to secondhand and consignment stores. Now you can have expensive taste while pinching pennies. Nothing beats the thrill of bagging that one of a kind designer piece for under $10.

2. Help a charity

Not all secondhand stores are connected to charities, but a whole lot of them are! You get to shop and charities get to pass on the benefits. It's win-win.

3. Stop landfill & waste

Everything you find in a secondhand store could have easily ended up in landfill or collecting dust in someone's home. Buying secondhand is a way to practice sustainability while shopping at the same time. It shrinks our fashion footprint and environmental impact by giving items a second chance. It's a war on waste!

4. Give items new life

Choose old over new. When we buy or wear an item that has already been produced, we are giving it a new life and rebelling against fast fashion and over consumption. You might have heard the saying "Clothes aren't made how they used to be". Revive the style of yesterday and combine it with the today!

5. Unique style

Shopping secondhand and vintage helps you create your own unique personal style that last longer than any latest trends. Create an outfit from one-off pieces or combine with something that is already in your wardrobe.

Don't forget to bring your reusable shopping bag!
